Dear Middlesex Community,

I hope you are all enjoying the spring weather — although we've certainly had starts and stops here in the Northeast! As Middlesex embarks on a busy and fulfilling spring program, I wanted to give you a quick update on the Head of School search process.

First let me once again thank you for all the guidance, feedback, and thought partnership that you have provided over the last few months. The Search Committee is extremely appreciative of the incredibly thoughtful and passionate Middlesex community as we engage in this process together.

To date, our partners at Carney Sandoe & Associates have reviewed and/or interviewed over 150 potential candidates with strong, diverse, and highly relevant skills and experiences. The Search Committee has identified a dozen candidates to interview from this deep pool, and we will begin first round interviews this week. As we narrow our search over the coming weeks, we will continue to welcome input from the Middlesex community.

I will share another update following our initial interviews; in the meantime, the Search Committee and I welcome your input at SearchCommittee@mxschool.edu.

Sincerely,
Jason Robart
Chair, Head of School Search Committee
